

SOAR TO NEW HEIGHTS

The Loomex Group is pleased to announce the expansion of our Education & Training department.

As of September 7, 2021, The Loomex Group will be the new home to a private school with an experiential learning focus in aviation along with Arrowsmith Cognitive Programs for students in Grades 5-10.

Experiential learning, mentoring and entrepreneurial education are becoming more common in education globally. Experiential learning opportunities can help young people appreciate the relevance of what they are learning in school.

By participating in activities such as job shadowing or taking field trips where they can engage in hands-on learning, young people can connect with issues and ideas outside the classroom and build self-efficacy as they learn more about what they enjoy doing.

All students require support from educators, peers, families, and communities to achieve their full potential in learning. Research demonstrates that young people can have different learning styles and preferences, and that they are most engaged in learning when their particular interests, level of readiness and preferences are addressed.

WHY?

- A strong education can help young people to become successful, confident, creative, active, and informed citizens
- Promotes positive development and builds self-sufficiency
- Supportive learning environments are linked to student achievement, better paying jobs, and enhanced wellbeing
- Increased chance of getting a job, succeeding in the workplace, and becoming community leaders
- Providing young Ontarians with access to a range of training opportunities to pursue their interests and skills enables them to contribute to their communities

While many of Ontario's youth are succeeding in school, we also know that racialized youth, Aboriginal youth, youth in and leaving care and some other marginalized groups of young people in Ontario have persistently poorer outcomes in education than their peers.

By using differentiated learning strategies, educators can adapt to individual styles, strengths, goals and interests. Embracing the diversity of cultural learning styles through inclusive discussions, teaching, and accommodation for religious backgrounds supports all youth to succeed.

Primary, secondary, and postsecondary education is the most important aspect of skills building for Ontario youth.

The skills, talents and ambitions young people develop through education and training will shape their path as adults and enhance the contributions they make to Ontario's future workforce and society.

Shifts in Ontario's job market include a rise in service-oriented industries, and a greater need for young people in skilled trades. Young people must be prepared with the skills to meet this demand.
